From 2018-01-01 the RV3/RP3 will expand to include viewing and household information from 3000 households instead of the 1350 today. Also all household numbers will be exchanged. The format of the files and household number will stay the same. Please observe that this is the same date as the new universe figures and base figures. If needed a test data of the expansion can be delivered. Please contact danielle@mms.se if you want access to test data.

Background

MMS is currently working on a panel expansion from existing 1350 households to 3000 households. A replacement of all household numbers is also needed due to GDPR.

About the test data set

Two complete weeks of data, 2016-12-19 to 2017-01-01, expanded from existing 1350 households, to 4000 households.

The data is generated from existing ORPI dataset for the same period, adding two extra, twin households for every existing household. The panelists behavior is replicated to the twin households.

All weights have been reduced to 1/3 of the original, making it possible to compare the results from the test data with the original ORPI results, within a small discrepancy due to rounding errors in the new weights.

When testing, special attention should be given to Christmas eve, 2016-12-24, when the viewing peaks.

MMS-TU #120 2009-09-07 New definitions regarding reported channels and total tv viewing in effect 2009-09-28

Due to upcoming viewing reportings from UNITAM households, there will be a:

- decreased set of reported channels, only those present in the reference library
- total television viewing defined as the sum of channels present in the reference library

New definitions are in effect from viewing day Monday 2009-09-28.

The daily raw viewing file RV will therefore contain fewer channels and there will be a reduced number of channels available in reporting systems and tools. But; early next year there will be time shifted viewing attributed to today's live viewing.

A list of the channels present in the reference library can be seen and downloaded at "mms.se".

New definition of total television is in effect from viewing day 2009-09-28 when UNITAM meters for the first time are active in the panel households.

Total television now is defined as the sum of viewing on all channels present in the reference library. Please note that channels can be removed from the reference library and new channels can be included in the reference library over time.

Please note that channel/source-number 240 and 241 now have changed meaning.

The following exclusions in the viewing file RV must be made when calculating the total television viewing (same numbers as before, no IT program changes needed):

Channel/source Number *	Source Name
75	Game
82	VCR
86	DVD
146	Pay per view
240	Consumption of time shifted television
241	Other channels/usage/sources, not included in the total television viewing
135	Radio

*According to MMS list of reference recorded channels

Only the backwards attributed viewing shall be counted into the total television viewing, not the viewing at the moment of consumption.
